

As you may be aware, the rapidly evolving issues posed by the COVID-19 pandemic could drastically change our day-to-day lifestyle, as well as how our industry operates moving forward. Your promotional product experts at Union Resource Marketing want to assure you as a valued customer that we are actively exploring and exercising all options to continue to provide you the business that you rely on us to produce. With that in mind, there may be limitations that arise due to developments in how our nation plans to confront the epidemic that we simply cannot avoid. However, we have implemented procedures to work remotely and place and ship orders as allowed in the event of a government quarantine. As a strong, family-owned company, we want you to feel confident in our capabilities, but also in our relationship with you as a client. We will communicate how this affects us and you every step of the way. We are all in this together.

Sincerely,

Team URM
